According to the latest estimates for 2023, there will be 2,638 billionaires in the world, constituting a mere 0.00003% of the global population. Collectively, these individuals hold a staggering wealth of $12.2 trillion, which accounts for roughly 0.04% of the entire world's GDP.

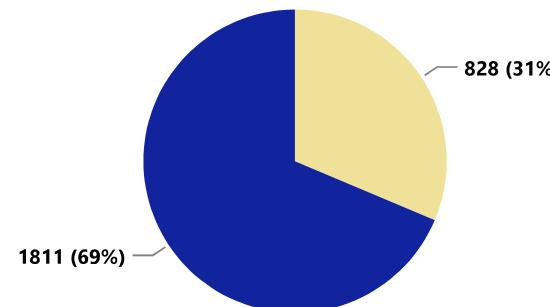

The distribution of billionaires is not uniform across countries. The United States leads the way with 754 billionaires, followed by China with 521, and India with 157. These countries have proven to be fertile ground for amassing immense wealth.

When it comes to industries, the most lucrative sectors for billionaires include technology, fashion & retail, finance and investment. These areas have witnessed substantial wealth creation. Conversely, the energy, automotive, and healthcare sectors appear to be less profitable for billionaires.

In terms of gender diversity among billionaires, the landscape is uneven. A mere 12.77%, or 336 individuals, are women, while the majority, totaling 87.23%, or 2,302 individuals, are men.
